

1 Write your team mates' names in their conflict style boxes below:

2 Looking at the unique mix of conflict styles above, what is something your team should probably watch out for when conflict arises? Imbalances, potential pitfalls, blind spots, etc.

3 With this new awareness, what is one thing your team can do going forward to correct those potential imbalances, avoid those pitfalls, etc.?

4 Now that you know your own preferred Conflict Style, what is something you can do differently now to approach conflict with your team mates, co-workers and family members in a more balanced way?
